The Iowa Situation.

A remarkable political situation is the death of the beloved and revered Allison. Governor Cummins, progresable, has for ten years been the choice and leads us to seek better conditions of a powerful faction of Iowa Republicans for the Senate. Around him and our fathers. his ambition has raged that State's internecine war, which two years ago came near making the State Democratic. His enemies have been implacable. They include every corrupt and corporate interest in the State; every interest which may be generally characterized as hostile to the Roosevelt line

If now these interests continue their warfare, lowa will have to be listed in the doubtful column. It does not belong there, and blind factionism should not be allowed again to place it there. The national management of the Re publican party, which cannot afford to take chances of serious losses in an already dubious Middle West, ought vigorously to intervene and insist that Cummins be accepted as the next Senator, without a fight in his own party.

Cummins or a Democrat will probably be the outcome, or else a failure to elect a Senator. That is the situation today, unless peace can be brought by the strong hand of the national party's discipline. That hand need only be laid on a few recalcitrants in these places clean? Iowa to produce peace once more.

The nation needs Cummins in the ress and enlightenment. He was the man on whom the President and Mr. strong in the Middle West and with real progressives everywhere.

Strength will accrue to the Republican party in every State west of the Alleghenies if at this juncture the pomake their real and sincere progrescome a storm center in recent years; this man Cummins has centered one of fine! the bitterest fights between liberals and tories that any State has seen. If the Republican party wants to give substantial earnest of its honest liberalism, let its leaders' straight : out this Iowa tangle in favor of Cummins.

Tariff Support Lost to Bryan.

"Between the laborer and the manu facturer, I choose the former."

This was the attitude of Mr. Bryan

the National Association of Manufac widows. turers. Says that publication editorial-

Congressman Sereno E. Payne has pressed the button. We can now expect that the vast and intricate machinery of tariff investigation authorized by Congress at its last session will move smoothly to the desired end. * * It is reasonable to hope that statistics of rare value will soon be placed before the eminent statesmen who, by the authority of Congress, will have full control of tariff revision. * * What we will get from an investigation supervised by statesmen of the Payne and Hopkins stamp is easy to conjecture that is, if based upon their present affiliations and past performances.

That utterance is significant of many

That utterance is significant of many things-of potential support lost to Mr. his sister by a New Yorker, who was Bryage of full faith that the present away from home on a visit: tariff needs immediate revision; of deep suspicion on the part of the very men for whom the present tariff is supposed to be maintained that the Republican leaders have betrayed the country. The button may have been pressed, all right. But the National Association of Manufacturers evidently THE MUNSEY BUILDING, thinks it will be well to see that there is plenty of current in the wires.

Vacations the Order of the Month

This is the month when man, housed nearly the whole year, working hard Many Get Government Sunday, one year..........$2.50 at a task more or less monotonous for eleven and one-half months, takes his brief and much needed rest.

Change of scene, change of occupa tion, a breath of air, a sight of the fields and forests, a whiff of the oceanhow we pine for them, how brief they are after all! We have them for a few days, long enough to make us wonder how we live without them. In the driving business conditions that prevail now in civilized lands, we can be natural by exception only. As a general thing we are driven on our tasks.

What drives us? Rapacious employ ers, one will say. Insatiable greed of our own, another will tell us.

No. Not these. Love drives, love leads, love sustains and helps us in our daily efforts. Love for our wives, love for our children, love for our kin, de ire to provide for them, to nurture, to protect and sustain them. 'Tis love that makes the world go round.

We love them none the less when we go away for a holiday, to build up that into which Iowa is precipitated by again the depleted strength only that we may pour it out again in their service. It is the great parenta! affection sive, constructive, experienced, and that makes heroes of the humblest, for our children than we received from

Cleanliness Not a Spasm.

Will the Health Office go the whole distance?

That question, asked in these columns at the outset of the local cleaning-up crusade, has now been answered fully. The Health Office has gone the whole distance as far as the size of its corps would permit. There is good reason to believe that the restaurants, the dairy lunch rooms, the dairies, the stables, the groceries, the drug stores, the ice cream factories, the markets, and all M. Webb, $1,000 for newspaper readers to remember that wherever "modern standards of sanitation" are violated, roach bugs, water bugs, filth, and disease are the reasonplainly as though he had put it in words. That the industrial employers were suspicious of Republican promises to revise the tariff schedules, that no living gleader of the laboring men could deliver their votes at the polls, he must have known full well. But he chose. Now he must bear the consequences. What those consequences are likely to be is already manifest. Neither for him nor any other candidate is the so-called "labor vote" likely to have any strength. And the manufacturers have swallowed with as bright a smile as they can summon all their apprehension lest Republican inactivity as to protection may endanger the whole cause.

Another question now presents it-

Proof enough of the latter contention is offered in the current issue of "American gentleman in Europe. 11" the would be too bad to have Craig marry; he has been so useful to the foreign in dustries," the official organ of the National Association of Manufacturers.
